Building a Better Burger

Do you remember the first hamburger you ever ate? While I cannot recall all the specifics, I am absolutely sure that I poured a lot of ketchup on it. As a child, I thought that was the most awesome condiment in the world.

But then I got older and learned that there are other things to dress up a burger. Like mustard, mayonnaise, pickles, onions and the "special sauce" that McDonalds used. With all of these new ingredients, my burgers tasted better and better.

As I was working on this month's issue, I thought about condiments and the Nutley community and how our differences make our neighborhoods more interesting.

On the cover is the Khan family who shares their view of the world. Their multicultural household embraces different countries while they engage in town with our Nutley Neighbors. With four young children, Imran and Nadia Khan are busy parents, overseeing homework assignments, planning fun activities, and discovering what subjects each child favors.

But Nadia knows that all children should have a healthy respect and curiosity for other cultures. She was so intent on making this happen that she wrote a book, Zoey Wonders Why. Be sure to read their story—and also her book—to understand the heart of this family.

Differences in a community are seen in many ways, like with sports. It seems everyone has a favorite team or activity. In our Sports feature this month, we bring you news from the world of wrestling and the Nutley Raiders. Their season begins in November, and everyone is looking forward to it. A big round of applause goes to the coaches, parents, and everyone on the team for making wrestling an amazing experience that builds character and fosters friendships.

There are plenty of other 'condiments' here in the community, like the Nutley Public Library, the Nutley Historical Society, and Parks and Recreation. Each one of them adds to the flavor of the town with their own assortment of ideas, activities, and programs.

Although I still use ketchup on my burgers, I enjoy the variety and uniqueness of other toppings.

The world is big, and diversity makes it even better.

Feature Story

The Khan Family's Worldview from Their Window

By Joyce Corey

Photographs by Randall Kenneth Photography

With four young children, Imran and Nadia Khan's view of their backyard reflects an active family, complete with toys that stretch the imagination and provide hours of fun. But as parents they add something even more important to this domestic scene—a healthy worldview.

"We are a multicultural family," Nadia said. "My husband is Indian-American but was raised in Africa while I am Pakistani-American."

Their four children, Aadam (9), Haroon (8) Zaki (6), and Musa (4) are growing up learning to respect other cultures and to be curious about them. In fact, this is so important to Nadia that she wrote a children's book about this.

"I chose to write Zoey Wonders Why because my children and I didn't see many books at the library or bookstores that discussed cultural diversity awareness," Nadia said. "There were books concerning the many different cultures in communities but nothing to encourage a child to embrace and learn about their own culture. Many children belong to more than one culture like my kids, and they too need books that make them feel included or part of a bigger community."

As our Nutley Neighbors, Imran and Nadia and their children are enjoying interacting in the town as they share their cultural differences as well as their many similarities.

"Our four boys go to Washington Elementary School," Nadia said. "They are all in the younger grades but already they are finding subjects that capture their interest."

"Haroon and Zaki are great artists and love sketching and coloring their artwork be it by following ArtHub or just on their own. Haroon is very much into seeing how things work and really wants to do something with civil engineering while Aadam wants to become a scientist and learn about germs and viruses. He is an avid fan of Minecraft and Roblox like many of his peers in third grade. Musa is a great cuddler and loves to listen to stories. His favorite that he knows by heart is The Hungry Caterpillar which was the theme of his birthday in June."

The boys' interests, ages, and activity levels fit right in with the neighborhood children.

"We just moved to this area this past November," Nadia said. "Previously, we lived in Arbor Hills, but the boys needed more space to be kids and to build more memories in a home. There are many kids that live on Conover Avenue, and the street has a baseball field to watch games being played along with a small playground for the kids to interact and make friends."

When the Khan family moved here, they also brought their multicultural mindset which shows their appreciation for those around them.

"We live on a quiet street with a great mix of different races and ethnicities," Nadia said. "Our neighbors to the right of us have Ukrainian and Irish heritage while those to the left of us are from South America. Although we are still new to the neighborhood, we hope to meet more people soon."

Imran and Nadia share the same hopes and dreams for their children as do parents everywhere. And like many parents, when a child needs medical attention, there is uncertainty and stress.

"Zaki was born with a double thumb, and it was difficult finding a hand surgeon to remove the extra portion," Nadia said. "It was tough when he was 18 months old driving to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia and later spending months in a cast and receiving occupational therapy for a while. He just went for his five-year checkup at the hospital this past June and it's a blessing to see how much he has grown as a child and as an artist."

While the Khan family is enjoying their neighborhood and Nutley activities and events, they also have plans to broaden their sons' worldview through travel.

"Since the boys are young, we haven't traveled

5 Things the Khan Family Loves About Nutley

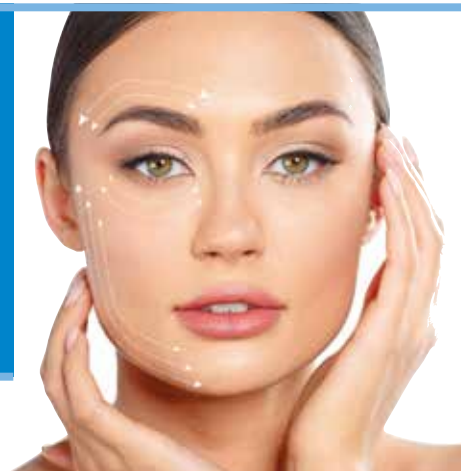

1. Vast amount of green space and trees that create a quaint, small-town vibe
2. Diversity of cultures and ethnicities that all interact at the local coffee shops or ShopRite.
3. Approachable and understanding police department that are always available to help install a car seat or to answer any questions that we residents may have
4. All the great small business we go to like Chestnut Café for coffee and pancakes to our wonderful bakery Aroma Di Napoli
5. Thanks to all the great teachers and staff in Nutley's education system that work so hard to help our kids excel above and beyond especially with the extra activities such as speech classes and occupational therapy services internationally yet, but when they are older and a bit more independent, we want to visit Turkey, Italy, and Jerusalem," Nadia said. "Usually, we take an annual trip but with the Covid restrictions the past two years we just went to Jersey beaches. Previously, we had traveled to Santa Cruz in California and to Houston, Texas to the NASA Johnson Space Center. We also visited the Perot Museum of Nature and Science to see the dinosaur bones and other exhibits. We hope to someday go to Austin to try the hiking trails. Now, with the rising costs of inflation, we have decided to stay local and check out the Adventure Aquarium in Camden and Abma's Farm Market, Greenhouse & Petting Zoo in Wyckoff." But wherever they are, their view of the world helps them see everyone in the best possible light. As a multicultural family, Imran, Nadia, Aadam, Haroon, Zaki, and Musa Khan understand that differences are just new things to learn, and there are always more similarities than you think. ■

We are always looking for fascinating residents to feature in Nutley Neighbors. If you are interested in being included or would like to nominate one of your neighbors please email jcorey@bestversionmedia.com.

Wish You Were Here

By Joyce Corey

Did the title make you think of Pink Floyd or Incubus? Your answer probably depends on the generation you are from since both groups had songs by the same name—30 years apart.

This is also a sentiment that Coach Michael Blanchard applies to those who did not have the opportunity to attend this year's Raider Wrestling Clinic on July 18-21.

"We had over 70 young people come out and partake in a memorable experience," he said. "The clinic is designed to attract new wrestlers from Nutley, but it also has expanded beyond Nutley's borders. We feel like it is best to bring the camp to the kids. Not everyone has a chance to travel all the way to Ohio for a wrestling camp."

It's with that idea in mind that the Raider Wrestling Clinic has continued to expand, and Blanchard has pushed the envelope with who he invites to help teach.

"This year we had Princeton University's International Wrestler and Assistant Coach Nate Jackson, NCAA runner-up in 2022 from Princeton University Quincy Monday, The College of NJ (TCNJ) Head Coach Joe Galante, and Head Coach Tom Ryan from Ohio State," Blanchard stated.

Blanchard and his coaches run the first night for just the Nutley kids. After that, everyone has a chance to work with the wrestling legends that have become a staple of the clinic since Joey McKenna, Ohio State and international wrestler, kicked it off in 2019.

"We look to get great people to help with the kids," Blanchard said. "Although we teach a lot of the same things, when we have highly decorated coaches and athletes making time for the kids, they absorb moves and mantras like sponges, and are lifted higher by the lessons they are imparted with."

Nutley Sports

The Raider wrestling community has an abundance of support from parents, fellow coaches, including NHS Head Coach Mike DiPiano, wrestlers, and of course, Nutley Parks and Recreation. Frank DeMaio and Commissioner Mauro Tucci share the vision to get kids into perhaps the toughest sport out there.

"We are fortunate for everyone's support," Blanchard said. "It gives me the opportunity to give our kids a top-notch experience."

Another aspect of this year's clinic was a dinner with Tom Ryan that followed his coaching time with the kids. "It was terrific for just the adults to hear Coach Ryan's story and also hear a perspective from an elite Division I coach," Blanchard said.

Tom Ryan's most memorable line came during the teaching session when he said, "Make sure your eyes are looking where you want to go. Don't ever have your head facing down."

That sums up the wrestling program in Nutley. Blanchard encourages everyone to look toward the future because "we climb together."

With a league championship last season, new goals will be expanded, explored, and more accolades will be garnered.

The season begins in November; don't miss out on a great experience for your kids.

Let's not have Coach Blanchard singing "Wish You Were Here." ■

FORGE? A Walk Across America

by Robert L. Bonora

Book review by David Wilson

This is the story of two special Nutleyites, best friends since high school, and their incredible journey of life. Inspirations, dreams, and passions ebb and flow in our lives. Sometimes big plans take a stranglehold on our thoughts, and we actually move towards fulfilling those dreams. Robert Bonora and Anthony Greco decided their big adventure would be to walk across America, a twelve-state, three-thousand-mile, seven-million-steps journey of epic experiences and memories.

Planning for such an event involved many people and lots of research. Think about all that goes into walking 35 miles or more a day through unfamiliar territory. Everything— from socks, hats, sunblock, food, hydration, sneakers (seven pairs), maps, lodging, safety, communications, social media— must be planned. Rob covers this in a humorous and conversational way that makes you want to keep reading as they hike to their next destination.

At times a journey of survival, Rob and Ant, fourth and third generation Nutleyites, wanted to raise funds for those in need. Their umbrella charity, Coast to Coast for a Cure, disbursed monies to Derek's Dreams, Gail's Angels Foundation, and St. Jude's Children Hospital. The t-shirts worn during the four-month trip became a way to connect with strangers along the route and add credibility to their mission with the many generous folks who provided food, showers, entertainment, and lodging.

Countless people supported the trip with financing, encouragement, technical knowledge, and gear. Their parents, Mayor Joanne Cocchiola, Loren McCreesh, Jim Babai, and the late Steve DeGregorio were primary early sponsors. Along the way social media followers, local media, business owners, and total strangers paved the way to complete the journey.

Rob's descriptive writing brings you to the many areas of this vast country: mountains, flatlands, farmland and its odors, highways, small towns, big cities, rural areas, college campuses, fancy hotels, flea-bag motels, big skies, regional cuisine, stadiums, and the many Americans that inhabit these areas. The experience of the night sky during their time in the Anza-Borrego Desert State Park is a highlight of their trip.

I love to walk the neighborhoods of Nutley and find some of Rob's stories popping into my head as I reach the top of a big hill, see wild animals, or have a conversation with a person I've never met before.

The final chapter covers their triumphant return to Nutley and the cheering crowd lining the streets. Robert and Anthony received the Nutley Jaycees Outstanding Young Adult Award and the key to the city. The mental and physical challenges are presented in a way to help you appreciate how difficult and life-changing this trip was. Rob has woven many philosophies into the story line and his observations on life in general reminds us how fragile life can be, yet it can also offer opportunities to achieve goals you never thought possible. This is a book with many components that will entertain and inspire you. ■

Friends of the Nutley Public Library

By Dorothy Huey, President

What a difference a year makes! Last year at this time we were planning our first book sale since the pandemic began, and now we've got two highly successful fall and spring book sales in the record books. Our spring sale was the most profitable ever; many thanks to all who participated and visited!

I am happy to report that we had our much-loved LeeRae O'Brien Author's Tea this past spring, also well attended and enjoyed. Our book sale and author's tea are our biggest fundraisers and allow us to continue to sponsor so many of the library programs offered to children and adults.

Fundraising is of course a priority for the Friends and we invite you to join us this year on Giving Tuesday, which is November 29, the Tuesday after Thanksgiving. This year we aim to double the participation and donations received in 2021 and ask that you consider donating to the Friends so that we can continue to sustain programs provided to the community.

Look for our Giving Tuesday link on the library's Friends Donate page and check out our Facebook page for information on that as well as all of our activities.

We are thrilled to help our youth and adults learn and grow. To that end, we sponsor the popular Summer Reading program offered to children, youth, and adults.

Your donations also help us sponsor fun adult events like DISH! where participants choose a recipe from the same cookbook and share on the first Monday of each month. Always a great learning experience, plus a delicious dinner for all! Other fun Friends-sponsored events include the library's popular DIY jewelry classes which will explore new

This fall we are introducing an exciting new initiative: The Friends of the Nutley Public Library are pleased to offer a beautiful bookmark, which, as a supporter of the

We loved meeting so many of you when Friends members joined our librarians at our table this year at the Farmers Market. The library is all about you and we invite you to join us in our important mission to support the activities and purposes of the Nutley Free Public Library in enhancing the artistic, cultural, humanitarian, intellectual, and literary aspects of community life.

For the latest information about library programs, events, and happenings, go to www.nutleypubliclibrary.org, where you can also find information on Friends' meetings, events, museum passes, and more. The library is on Instagram, Twitter, and Facebook, and the Friends are also on Facebook.

Memories of the Feland Mansion

By Barry Lenson, Art Historian, Nutley Historical Society and with special thanks to Nicholas Van Dorn of the Nutley Public Library for research assistance

This elegant mansion on The Enclosure, built in 1840 and destroyed in 1967, will forever be part of the history of our town.

When I was growing up on a certain street in Nutley called The Enclosure in the 1950s, a vast and elegant yellow mansion - commonly called The Feland Mansion - sat at the end of our dead-end lane. When you turned off Passaic Avenue and drove into The Enclosure, your breath was taken away by the sight of this huge and elegant old house, surrounded by formal gardens that overlooked the Third River behind it in the park.

The comings and goings of the wealthy Feland family occupied the thoughts of other residents of the street. We could see Mrs. Feland being driven up and down the street in a big green limousine that was piloted by an actual servant. (A servant, in Nutley, New Jersey?) That same servant also acted as gardener and guard for the elegant gardens and the house. On more than one occasion, he buttonholed me and delivered me to my parents saying, "Can't you keep this kid out of our grounds?"

I was not the only kid who loved to trespass there. Later, in 1974, a man named Thomas Hood who had grown up 25 years earlier on the street contributed the following reminiscences to The Nutley Sun. They closely resemble mine ...

"When I was three years old, we moved to this town, our town, Nutley. At the end of our street was a house, a mansion,

The Feland Mansion. Around it was trees, trees, and more trees, wildflowers I would pick for Mommy and space, space, space. That's what we liked. Space to hide and play in. Space to hide and explore in. They tore the Feland house down. At the time we didn't care. It just meant more room."

The "they" Thomas Hood referred to are the people who tore the mansion down. Therein lies a story that you can research in the archives of The Nutley Sun found on microfilm at the Nutley Public Library.

It was quite a story at the time. A real estate developer bought the house from the Feland family, who were moving out of town. Despite reassuring the community that he would not cause harm to the elegant neighborhood; he tore the mansion down and the developer installed a semicircle of new homes that now occupies the footprint of land the mansion once occupied. The houses he built, which are quite lovely, have become an enclave for a group of Enclosure residents who have raised families of their own. So therein lies progress - one beautiful part of our town history passes away and is replaced by the next.

But when I turn the corner and drive into The Enclosure, I can still see the outline of the Mansion in my mind's eye. Maybe you will see it too, now that you have seen these pictures? Gone though it may be, it will forever be part of Nutley history. ■

Adopt Us!

Submitted by Christa Milici, Yellow Brick Road Rescue NJ

Street is a two-year-old male. He is very sweet and would make the perfect addition to any family. Street was rescued from a local high kill shelter where he spent many months in a small, cold cage. He is safe and warm with us and just needs a family of his own now! He is cat and kid friendly. Since he loves cats so much, we would really prefer him to go to a home that has other cat(s). We are unsure about dogs, but he would likely be okay with a calm/mellow one. He is microchipped, FIV/FelV negative, stool tested, dewormed, UTD on vaccines, and neutered. $100 adoption fee and application apply. ■

Pet Corner

Just over a year old, Gemma has always been told she was “too much” her whole young life and is desperately seeking the right home this time around.

Gemma’s good nature and love of life has been her downfall, but for the right home willing to put in the time to train and exercise her, she has the potential to be an amazing best friend and jogging or hiking partner. Everything is a game to this silly girl who never outgrew her puppyhood.

We admit, she’s too much dog for many people—meeting her can be a full contact sport and walking her will build your upper body strength better than pull-ups or weight lifting. She’s responded well to training, but it must be followed through consistently so as not to confuse her and reward her when she’s being calm. She’s too much for a home with children and does best with a firm but calm handler. Gemma is crate-trained and we will assist with follow up training post adoption to help give her the best chance of success. ■

Please submit an application from www.rbari.org for an appointment to meet our infectiously happy forever puppy!

It's not often that you see a brother-sister duo both in the primes of their respective professional careers — let alone in the same state — but Dallas Wings guard Arike Ogunbowale and Houston Texans running back Dare Ogunbowale aren't your typical siblings. Born to a father, Gregory, who migrated from Nigeria, and a mother, Yolanda, who broke softball records at DePaul, Arike and Dare owe much of their personal and athletic success to their hard-working parents... A Season of Creativity!

By Michelle Palmer

Fall is a time to celebrate the colorful changing of the leaves, which is an inspiration to fall back into creativity. Children of all ages have been exploring new talents and making memories along the way.

Mattie, age six, attended Nutley's Fall Festival and enjoyed taking an outdoor painting class with Pinot's Palette. She painted this tasty ice cream canvas which is a beautiful tribute to summer fun.

Kolbe is a four-year-old who got super creative making art out of fall nature. He made ephemeral art using items he found outside. He said it was the world of Motunui. Then, he worked with his mom to create a poem.

Khanh Ngoc is a three-year-old who loves to cook and help prepare food with her family. She can make eggs, pancakes, smoothies, wash and cut veggies, and clean all the mess afterwards. Her family loves that she is such a big helper.

Lily is a very talented 11-year-old with a passion for painting. She combined her love for art and movies with this masterpiece and named it "A Starry Night Love Story." Her canvas is the perfect celebration piece for fall. ■
